

Lexa — Sovereign Credit Reports

A full 14-page sovereign credit report for any country — ratings, fiscal outlook, external position, political risk — in one house format, with a Q&A on the report.

A full country report, on demand

Lexa assembles a complete sovereign credit report for any country — ratings, economic fundamentals, fiscal outlook, external position and political risk — pulled together into a structured 14-page analysis.

- Ratings from S&P, Moody's and Fitch, in one place.
- Economic and fiscal data, external position, political risk.
- A consistent format every time, so two countries read the same way.

What used to be days of analyst desk research arrives as a credible country credit view you can put in front of a client.

Ask the report questions

Once a report exists, you don't have to read all 14 pages to use it. Ask it questions in plain English and Lexa answers from the report's own content, with citations.

- "What's driving the fiscal outlook?" → a specific answer, sourced from the report.
- "How does this compare on external debt?" → straight from the analysis.

Open Lexa

Lexa has just appeared in your sidebar — open it there and generate a report for any country you're talking to a client about.

